Music Everywhere! (Global Fund For Children Books (Hardcover))

Synopsis

Photographs from around the world celebrate the universal joy that kids get from making music, whether theyâ™re playing instruments, clapping their hands, stomping their feet, or singing. Music can help express one childâ™s feelingsâ™or it can bring a whole community together.

Customer Reviews

Page after page of color photos show children making music in various cultures using a wide range of instruments. The text is limited but the pictures are great. My only reservation is how many times will a young child in the intended age group wish to return to this paperback. On the plus side there are, at the back of the book, directions on how to make some instruments such as a glass harp and bean tambourine. Music teachers may find this book a good way to begin a class conversation about the importance of music. Book provided by publisher.

I purchased this book for a teacher friend to put in her classroom and the photos in it are absolutely beautiful. It really does capture music from all over the world, the preschoolers in her class will LOVE that book!
